The book is made up of six meditations, in which Descartes first discards all belief in things which are not absolutely certain, and then tries to establish what can be known for sure. The meditations were written as if he was meditating for 6 days: each meditation refers to the last one as yesterday. (In fact, Descartes began work on the Meditations in 1639.) The Meditations consist of the presentation of Descartes metaphysical system in its most detailed level and in the expanding of Descartes philosophical system, which he first introduced in the fourth part of his Discourse on Method (1637). Descartes metaphysical thought is also found in the Principles of Philosophy (1644), which the author intended to be a philosophy guidebook. The motive which induces me to present to you this Treatise is so excellent, and, when you become acquainted with its...
